Managing your finances

Bank account

Talk to your bank about setting up a business bank account. Find out what they need from you and how long it will take so you can get one set up before you start to trade.

Accounting system

As well as having a bank account, you will need to know how to organise your finances. This will include cash management, budgets, payments and invoicing. Think now about using an online finance system like Quickbooks or Xero and consider using a bookkeeper to help you.

Other systems

If you are taking money directly from customers you also need to decide on a till & stock management system and how to take credit card payments.

Make sure you pay the right tax and social security

Speak to the Tax department about your intention to set up in business so you can agree how to pay your income tax. This page personal tax for business owners will help you understand the steps you need to take.

Speak to Social Security about your individual circumstances and how much social security contribution you will need to pay in your first years. This page will help you social security payments for business owners or self-employed.

Get your systems and data protection in place

Register with the Office of the Information Commissioner if you will be holding personal data.

Every business needs some way to record its activities and manage the paperwork that is involved in buying and selling products or services. Some very small hobby businesses are simple enough to do all this on paper, however most businesses function much more effectively with some form of IT. From emails, social media and websites to accounts software, document storage and customer databases there is software, a platform or an app to help out and, let's face it, using the right IT can make life a whole lot simpler and quicker.
